Birkholz Recognized as one of 50 Most Influential Women in West Michigan

Grand Rapids Business Journal honors 50 outstanding women

Monday, March 3, 2003- Senator Patricia Birkholz, R-Saugatuck Township, today was recognized as one of the 50 most influential women in West Michigan by the Grand Rapids Business Journal.

Today's event, which was held at the Frederik Meijer Gardens, honored 50 West Michigan women recognized as leaders at the helm of business, academia and their professions. These women are recognized for affecting change in their community, giving tirelessly of themselves and their time through charitable organizations and providing strong and ethical leadership through their numerous board appointments.

"Being recognized by the Grand Rapids Business Journal as one of 50 most influential women in West Michigan, is truly an honor and a privilege," Birkholz said. "I am surrounded by 49 other amazing and talented women who definitely deserve this recognition."
